INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this directory is to inform parents, carers and young people of Enfield about supplementary education services that are available within the borough.

WHAT ARE SUPPLEMENTARY SCHOOLS?

There are an estimated 5,000 'supplementary', 'complementary', 'community' or 'Saturday' schools in Britain. They come in a variety of shapes and forms. In general they offer out-of-school-hours educational opportunities for children and young people, many of whom come from minority ethnic communities.

Supplementary schools share a number of characteristics:

- They offer a range of learning opportunities, including national curriculum subjects (English, maths, science and others), religious studies, mother-tongue classes, cultural studies and a range of extra activities, such as sport, music, dance and drama.
- They run throughout the week in the evenings, or at weekends.
- They are set up by local community groups.
- They are voluntary organisations. Very often they rely almost exclusively on volunteers.
- They operate from a variety of venues: community centres, youth clubs, places of worship, mainstream schools and other places.

A number of mainstream secondary and primary schools are now opening their doors to supplementary schools and have established teaching and operational partnerships.

London Merit Association was established and registered as a Charity for the benefit of the Turkish Community in the UK. Education is a very important issue for the Turkish speaking community in Britain, particularly for those from Turkey. The Committee found that Turkish children are among the lowest educational achievers in London.

The Premises are used for educational purposes and other events and activities to help children and their families in their efforts to integrate into British Society at the same time as helping them not to forget their ethnic heritage e.g. bringing the community together with special cultural festivals and celebrations. The building is also used for providing free English courses to young people and adult Turkish people. Many after school activities for under 14's take place e.g. a football club that takes place in London Turkish Football League, canoeing, swimming etc. The Committee points to the importance of the supplementary schools, and emphasizes that 'if parents are able to read and write in English, they will have a greater understanding of their children's needs'. This organisation will aim to support Turkish expatriates in their efforts to integrate into British society at the same time as helping them not to forget their ethnic heritage.
